Big and Little

Dov and Dina were at the store with Mommy. They were buying school things for Dov for the new year. Mommy bought Dov some nice pointy  pencils and an  eraser. She bought him a set of  in all the colors of the  rainbow.

"I want to go to school as well," said Dina. "Then I can also get new  pencils and an  eraser and  crayons." Mommy smiled. "You're not quite big enough yet. But you always tell me how much you love going to Morah's."

"But now I want to go to school," said Dina.

"You'll have to wait until you're older, dear," said Mommy.

Dina sighed. When would she get big already? It seemed to be taking forever.

Mommy felt sorry for the little girl, and bought her a new  pencil of her own, but Dina still wished she could go to school.

"Are you gonna play in the  doll corner when you go back to school?" she asked Dov.

Dov stared at her.

" Doll corner? We don't have a  doll corner in my class."

"So where do they keep all the  dollies and  teddies?" asked Dina in surprise.

"We don't have  dollies or  teddies. We're big-school kids."

"Oh," said Dina.

She thought about Morah's doll corner. There were  dollies and  teddies and a dress-up box. All the children loved playing in the  doll corner.

Who needed to get big?

She was quite happy to stay at Morah's, thank you very much!
