

you can
READ

What's New?

Mishpacha

Bubby was going away for a few weeks.

Dov and Dina had come to her  to say goodbye.

"Where are you going, Bubby?" asked Dov.

"To a place called ,

"I'm going to visit my aunty. She's a very  and hasn't been feeling too well."

Dina looked surprised.

"How can it be?" she asked. "You said you're going to . So if it's new, how can there be a very  there?"

Bubby laughed.

"There are all sorts of people there. Actually, my aunty lives in a care home that has lots of old people living there."

"So then it shouldn't be called ,

Dina. "It should be called Old York."

"Hmm. That's an interesting idea," said Bubby. "But I don't think they'll change the name now. It would be too complicated."

"What else is there in ? Besides old people," asked Dov.

"Well, there are lots of young people too. And  and shops.  is a very busy place."

"I'm going to miss you, Bubby," said Dina.

"Me too," said Dov.

"I'm going to miss you too, Dov and Dina," said Bubby. "But hey, let's not be . Here's something to cheer you up: When I'm in  I'm going to buy you each a nice . And I'll make sure it's something new, not old."

"Thanks, Bubby,"  Dov and Dina.

Simi Shalomo